"the best of times"

(Top) A face in the crowd — Brenda Waltman joins the parade of homecoming celebrators for the walk from Memorial to Enlow field.

(Center) No Fooling — Seniors worked evenings of homecoming week to produce a fancy float. Classmates who joined the fun included Abbie Hayden and J.C. Ackerman.

The timeless words of Charles Dickens are just as meaningful in 1981-82 as they were when he lived more than 100 years ago. Our standard of living has never been higher, and the world has never been in as much turmoil. Indeed, it is the best of times and the worst of times. While students built senior floats for football homecoming and looked forward to the next party, citizens across America anticipated tax cuts and developed new conservative attitudes toward spending. Oblivious to international news, we (Center) Vexed — Only a cross country expert like Larry Robinson can drop his books all over the hall and still make it to freshmen English before the four minute bell.

(Right) Over-texted — Students line up grim faced to swap an average of $75 for more books than they can carry from the temporary bookstore set up in the wrestling room.

"the age of wisdom"

thought our biggest crisis was staying up until 2:00 a.m. finishing a term paper. Meanwhile, the world mourned the death of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, a heart attack claimed the life of Israeli military strategist, Moshe Dayan, and sports fans grieved the untimely death of hydroplane racer, Bill Muncey. It at times seemed as though the land of milk and honey had become a land of sand and

"the spring of hope"

Scheduling changes, standardized tests and 23-minute lunch periods left seniors feeling "ripped off" as the changes affected them most. President Ronald Reagan, however, promising Americans a balanced budget by 1984, created a feeling of hope. While at "the winter of despair"

Memorial, winning soccer and tennis teams gave students a refreshed feeling of pride for their school. As the year progressed, it was obvious Charles Dicken's statement, "We had nothing before us," was only a consideration. Seniors looking to their future with hope, began choosing

ACTIVITIES BUILD SPIRIT

Day for jeans — Regular classes were dismissed at 2:00 on the Friday of homecoming week to make way for a brief pep rally and a variety of activities. This year the V.W. push was reinstated along with the annual tug-of-war, volleyball, pyramid building and touch football.

PEAK PINS CROWN

(Right) Night to remember — Homecoming night began with the presentation of the court in the traditional V on the front steps of school at 6:00 on October 3. Members of the court were juniors, Karen Hassel and Theresa Mehringer escorted by Ed Brundick and Jim Lambert; sophomores Paula Meyer and Jeanne Krack escorted by Phil Luecke and Matt Falkenstein; freshmen Julie Lloyd and Sarah Creech escorted by Mike Traylor and Eric Seib: seniors Mary Longstaff, Jenny Brummel and Paula Peak escorted by Jim Short, Rick Barron, and Scott Dockery. Former queen Sarah Nussmeier and escort Jeff Ackerman participated in the ceremony along with Missy and Kenny Diliger.

Bruce Bunner chats with Nurse Will.

RABBIT MAKES DEBUT

Art of acting — Under the direction of Mr. James Kibler and student director Shae Wolf, the Memorial Drama Department presented "Harvey," a three act play by Mary Chase.

"Harvey" is the story of a man, Elwood P. Dowd, who claims his best friend is a six foot rabbit named Harvey. Elwood causes his family endless embarrassment when he introduces Harvey to friends and relatives who can neither see nor hear him. It becomes evident to Elwood's sister, Veta, that the only cure for him would be institutional care. Veta, however, in the process, gets herself committed.

The play, hilarious at times, was presented on December 3, 4 and 5. Chairman of the stage crew was Rob Livers. Miss Theresa Creech sponsored the make-up crew, along with Staci Lothamer, chairperson. Publicity for the play was handled by Eva Levi.

Formal dances

Jill Runge and Ed Brundick were among 250 students who attended the Christmas Dance.

DATE DINNER DANCE

Dance Check List

- ☐ Build courage to ask date
- ☐ Go to Eastland Mall for clothes
- ☐ Save $50 to blow on the evening
- ☐ Make dinner reservations at a classy place: perhaps F's, Cork and Cleaver or Butterfield's.
- ☐ Order corsage or boutonniere.

Laura Lasher is a little bit country.

BEST OF THE WEST

East siders go west — The night of the western dance, students could almost believe they were back in Luckenbach, Texas with Waylon and Willie and the boys!

Everyone showed up in western attire ready for a taste of the wild, wild west. Students enthusiastically joined in dancing to the foot-stompin' music. With hats flyin' and braids twirlin' students whooped and hollered until the late evening, when cowboys and cowgirls rode home from an exciting night on the ranch.

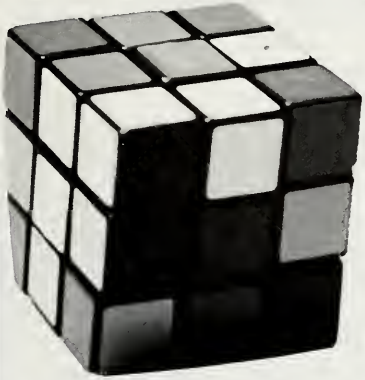
Trends



Inflation in fun — Rubik's cubes, new novelty shops, video games, air guitar contests, Superbowl XVI, the royal wedding, Reaganomics, New Wave Sounds, and fast food franchises were all cause for applause on the 1982 trend scene.

New Wave hits by such up and coming groups as the Go-Go's, Cars, Police, B-52's, Devo and Joan Jett and the Blackhearts were very popular with Memorial music fans.

Locally, everyone had a chance to hear Foreigner, Alabama and Ozzy Osborne in concert at Robert's Stadium.

If music came first, then food ran a very close second. McDonald's and Hardee's offered fast fries and hamburgers to those on the run, while a "sit-down" meal at Godfather's or Mr. Gatti's appealed to others.

The Royal Wedding, the new Reaganomics policy, unrest in El Salvador and the tragic loss of comedian John Belushi were memorable events on the national and international scene.

Whether they watched the news-making events on television, listened to the latest hits on their favorite jam system or cashed in their quarters for a video challenge, Memorial students kept on top of it all.

FAME IN NAMES AND GAMES

CROCODILES ARGYLES SET STYLES

Signed designs — Dingo boots, Italian Horns, argyles, top siders, Ann Klein gloves, monograms, crocodiles, triple pierced ears, and duck shoes commanded a place among the fad fashions of the year. Worn with the standard uniform skirt or required tie for school or combined with jeans for the weekend, designer duds teamed with designer perfumes and jewelry for the total "prep" profile.

ALL GOOD GIFTS

Mass production — In the 1981-82 school year all faculty members served on the ministry committee. There was, however, a core group for planning which included Br. James Bluma, Fr. Tom Kessler, Fr. Michael Madden, Sr. Margaret Quinlan and Miss Jeanne Stone.

Activities decided upon by this group were carried out by Fr. Tom, the school chaplain, and volunteer committees from the various classes. One special activity was the penance service held the week before Christmas.

Bands, you just can't beat 'em!

Band, TEN HUT !! — Band season began in early August with a week long trip to camp at Treble Acres in Haubstadt and continued with hours of hard work until late October.

New ideas and changes helped to give the band a boost at the Indiana State Band Competition in Terre Haute. Their honors included a second division rating and an overall placing of seventeenth.

Pep band was also an active part of the winter season. By providing musical entertainment at games and pep assemblies, this group was an added attraction through the basketball season.

Band officers were Dave Ottman, president; John Hummel, vice president; Brian Schymik, secretary; John Baker, treasurer; Liz Effinger and Ann Wittgen, librarians. The band was under the direction of Mr. Charles Briel.

The Rainbow Connection — The Memorial Tiger Color Guard, along with their new rainbow flags, have added a colorful style to the 1981 marching band season.

Under the leadership of Ruth Weiss and Patty Miller, the Color Guard went through a change over the summer. Not only did they perform with their large flags but they also had small blue and orange flags as an added attraction.

This year the Color Guard had fifteen members. They were capable of doing larger and more precise formations in their routine.

"The new look of the Color Guard and their skill helped us achieve an excellent season," said Patty Miller.

Spirit poms and trophies — Tigerettes started the season off on the right foot. Long and tiring practice hours paid off when the squad performed. These performances were given during basketball season only.

After attending a week-long camp at the University of Kentucky, the choreographers, seniors Joanne Davis and Kristi Speer and junior Shannon Scholz, created new moves that added sparkle to the show. Stand routines helped build enthusiasm during the games.

Cheerleaders boost spirit

Go Tigers Go! — A phrase often heard from the Memorial cheerleaders.

Tryouts were held in the spring of 1981 and all sixteen freshmen, reserve, and varsity cheerleaders were chosen. Practice began soon after tryouts and continued through the summer, interrupting school vacations. Included in the summer schedule was a trip to cheerleading camp where each squad learned new mounts and cheers.

The cheerleaders had their act together and ready to go by the beginning of football season in mid-August. Not only did they cheer at football games but they encouraged fans to yell at pep assemblies and basketball games.

What do the cheerleaders think? "It's hard work but it is worth their long hours."

Dedication and service — Building enthusiasm and bringing prestige to the school, the Pep and Key Clubs dedicated long hours in service to Memorial.

In their first fund raiser of the year, the Key Club earned nearly one hundred dollars on candle sales. The Key Club also sold tickets and passed out programs for the school plays.

The Pep Club, trying to increase school spirit, formed a yelling block during basketball season. Posters were made by the Pep Club and were displayed throughout the school. The club also sold candy and derbies during sectionals to fund their projects for the year.

Advisors for the Spirit Club were Mrs. Roiann Andrews and Mr. Rodney Lowe. Advisor for the Key Club was Mr. Del Schiavone.

Students make plans

Hard work and unity — The student council worked hard this past year to form "permanent committees" in an attempt to take care of various duties according to President Greg Wannemuehler.

The mixture of officers, representatives, and walk-ons kept busy discussing and planning activities throughout the school year. Football and basketball homecoming programs, the canned food drive, and more than a half dozen dances were just some of the council-sponsored activities.

Co-sponsors Mrs. Mary Lou Weidenbener and Mr. Leo Schultheis agreed that the student council format was successful. Mr. Schultheis, felt that the group was effective "because the students make the plans."

Apples and Art — Two special interest clubs dealt with skills as diverse as computers and compressors. The Computer Club began this year after the school purchased three new Apple II computers. These new computers could program both math problems and video games. Mrs. Debra Funk, advisor, explained that "these computers serve a multitude of purposes; some students are even preparing for their SAT's on them."

The Art Club decided to make their club structured by electing officers and forming regular meetings. The group skied at Paoli Peaks with some of the money made from their bake sales. Also Mr. John Cullison, a freelance artist, came and showed the club some techniques of painting with an airbrush.

Students gain global experience

Clubs learn culture — From the Oktoberfest to the Spring Banquet, the German Club focused on the culture of Deutschland, while the French Club built culture themes around parties and T-shirts.

YMCA folk dancers taught members of the German Club steps to the Polka and other folk dances during the Oktoberfest. Club Members also traveled to the Schnilzelbank in Jasper for the annual Spring Banquet.

The French Club's first major project was a Christmas party complete with French games, songs and food. The club also ordered T-shirts for each member saying "Smile if you speak French".

Chorus sings with enthusiasm — starting with the first concert, the enthusiasm of the choir was apparent. Many hours of practice were spent making it "one of the best fall concerts ever." The Christmas and Spring concerts were equally successful.

A recital was planned so parents and friends could hear a sample of competition performances. The year was made complete with a concert in the spring.

The New View — Under the guidance of new advisor Mr. Rodney Lowe, the Memorial View has made a few changes in format. Mr. Lowe, who is teaching his first year at Memorial, enjoys working with the staff.

The 1981-82 staff was almost all new members. Only Editor Jonna Shike and Assistant Editor Tom Ryder were veterans of the paper. Although each student had previously contributed to the newspaper in some way, they were made official members of the staff this year.

Working well together has proved to be the answer in publishing an excellent newspaper. The staff has found that teamwork is what gets the job done.

It's what's between the covers

Staff sees success — Six members of the yearbook staff and their sponsor attended a workshop at Hunter Publishing in Winston-Salem, N.C. During the four day conference, Editor Sharon Schenk, and staffers Paula Cook, Julie Suess, Libby Fitzsimmons, Sara Honnigford, Jeanne Price, and Ms. Shirley Everett were joined by former editor, Anne Buthod, and parent sponsor, Mrs. Ginny Cook, in touring the printing plant and studying yearbook skills. According to Sharon Schenk, "The staff returned with increased enthusiasm and new ideas for the 1982 Review."

EVERGREENS for FLORIDA STATE

A new experience — The purchase of three computers enhanced learning for many students this year. Math and science teachers demonstrated programming techniques in their classes. Some activities included solving basic algebraic equations on the computer's screen.

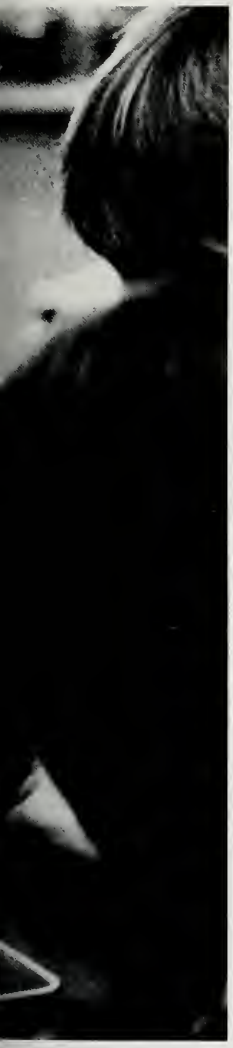
Sophomore highlights — Physical education students learn the importance of sportsmanship as they participate in team sports and other activities.

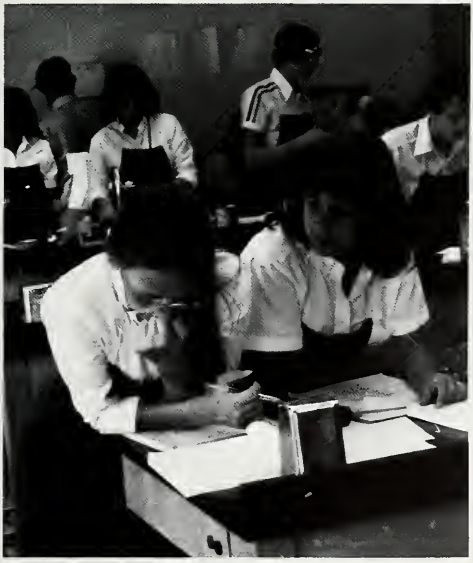
Driver's education students also practice their skills as they tour Evansville once a week with their instructors. The remaining time is spent in class viewing films and learning the rules of the road.

Active studies — Students learned through experience in all areas of the science department. Everything from worms to sharks was dissected in biology, giving freshmen and sophomores a firsthand look at anatomy.

In chemistry, students performed experiments testing chemicals and their interactions. Advanced chemistry classes were added to the curriculum this year for those who had taken chemistry and wanted to continue their studies.

Heat, light and friction were just a few of the bases touched by physics students. Labs were also done in these classes to learn about the physical sciences.





LEARNING BY DOING

Bonjour, Holá and Tag—More than just vocabulary was taught in the French, German and Spanish classes. Cultural interests and the histories of foreign countries were also studied.

French students enjoyed "tidbit days" every other week, when French-related items were brought and shared with the class. In Spanish classes, piñatas were made and later broken to bring old Spanish customs to life. German students wrote and produced their own German commercials promoting different products.

Something for everyone — From English I to Advanced Compositions, the English department offers a broad range of studies. Students start with English I and move on to newswriting or composition before choosing from a variety of writing and literature classes their junior and senior years.

Memorial's English department has something for everyone. Whether it be dramatic literature or grammatic skills, this diversity encourages individuality.

Variety Is Key To English Studies

TIME IN REVIEW

The living past — Much can be learned about our society today by looking at past events.

Students brought the past to life by participating in simulations in Br. Eugene's U.S. History and Advanced History classes. Activities varied from selling one another as slaves to creating their own cultures.

Freshmen World History students also had a chance to take a closer look at things from long ago as they worked on independent study projects recreating elements of ancient civilizations.

Students get the business — Business and T and I classes gave insight into the world of business and technical training. These classes provided a headstart to those interested in careers involving the varied fields of business, including management and secretarial positions. T. and I students left at midday to travel to North High School for their studies.

LEARNING IS SHARP BUSINESS

Quick draw and ready to wear — The art and clothing classes give students a chance to improve their skills as they work on individual projects.

Art classes use such media as charcoal, watercolor and acrylics to produce their masterpieces, while those in clothing learn to follow patterns and put together their own outfits.

Praise the Lord — Theology, a required course for all Memorial students, offers a strong foundation for Christian living. Students take part in discussions and biblical studies as they learn more about their faith.

Thumbs Up For Theology Department

Two seniors, two juniors make

Even though the season record was 0-10, the varsity football tigers achieved several individual awards. Seniors Joe Weinzapfel and Fred Schultheis, and juniors Ralph Hague and Greg Hirsch received the honor of being chosen for Evansville's All-City teams. According to Coach Ralph Weinzapfel, "Although the team experienced a disappointing season, there were fine individual efforts. They played hard."

The Tigers believe that next season may end differently. With experienced juniors and sophomores returning, victory is expected.

Soccer brings home third state;

Third time's a charm — A hero's welcome greeted the soccer team as they arrived in town with their third state championship. Riding on a firetruck from Whirlpool to Memorial, the players cheered along with their fans. Cheers were heard in the classroom as well when the student body was given a day off to celebrate.

Led by senior co-captain Bill Vieth, Jr. and his two goals, the squad defeated Culver Military Academy for the championship. Vieth's goals this season totaled 34, making him the leading scorer in the city league. Vieth was also named the Outstanding Offensive Player of the tournament. Other Tigers recognized for their abilities were senior co-captain Jim Short, J.C. Ackerman and Steve Koressel.

Coach Bill Vieth Sr. and the team have achieved a 65-4-1 record over the past three seasons, but next year the team will continue without Coach Vieth who resigned as head coach following this season's end.

Sectionals "piece of cake" for Lobs of talent — Completing a winning season, and taking the city title, the tennis tigers turned in a superb 18-2 record.

Coach Gene Logel, undoubtly pleased with the season, felt everyone on the team played well.

"It was a very enjoyable year," said Coach Logel. "There was a lot of talent and everyone played well."

Coach Logel scheduled regular practices throughout the season mainly to get the players in a top mental attitude.

"They had to be more prepared mentally for the tougher teams," he said.

Senior stand-out Joe Grief made it into the semi-finals once again this year. Although Grief was beaten it was his "great concentration" according to Logel which got him there.

The Tigers look strong again for next year since only three seniors, Joe Grief, Steve Titzer and Rick Barron are graduating.

Spikes and bumps serve them right

Team concept works well — "They had a team concept and worked well together," said Miss Brenda Craig, varsity volleyball coach. "They had one unified team."

"With a 12-8 record we won well over 50%, an improvement over last year. But along with a winning season, the girls had a great time," continued Coach Craig.

Lone senior Jeannine Brougham, who received the Kiwanis Award, and junior Julie Schenk were co-captains of the team.

Their toughest competition came from rival Mater Dei. Memorial beat them in regular season play, but Mater Dei won the sectional match. So the lady tigers were runner-up for the city.

Coach Craig added that they did a fine job with only one senior, and she is expecting a promising season next year.

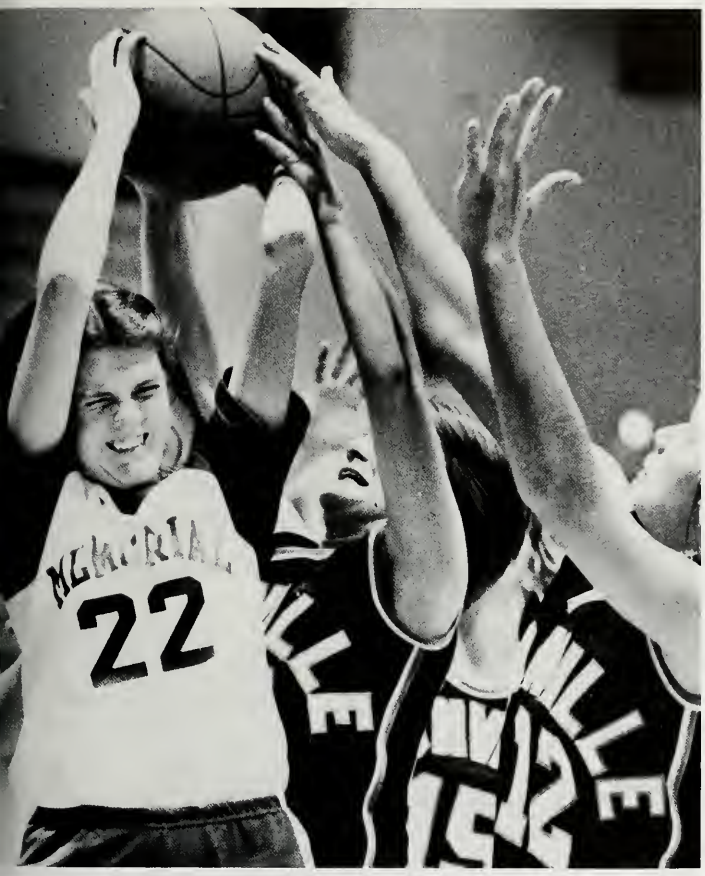
snag share of city title



Fundamentally, emotionally and mentally — The Lady Tigers were stocked to the full in these three categories this season. First year coach Andy Guarino put all of these priorities together and produced one of the best teams in the school's history and in the city this year.

The team finished with a record of 16-3 and claimed a share of the city title along with defending state champion, Reitz, whom they defeated twice. Although downed by Bosse in the final game of sectionals, the team will return all five starters next year to give everyone a run for the title ... again.

grapple their way into sectionals

Hallinan pins honors — This year's wrestling season proved to be a challenging one for the team (8-8), but a few members finished their season better than anticipated.

Mark Cannon, John Keller and Pat Hallinan all finished with sectional titles. It was Cannon's fourth one in a row. In addition to his sectional win, Hallinan also set three new school records in pins, take downs and total points.

Coach Merkel predicts

Batter up —The signs of baseball are everywhere: the batting cage in the gym, the infield raked and short hair.

With only four returning seniors, Steve Colvert, Rob Laubner, Greg Miller and John Pruiett, Coach Quentin Merkel expects them "to give us some leadership. If we don't have that, I think we will have some trouble."

Coach Merkel thinks the relatively young team won't be hurting. Defense and pitching are going to be the strong points.

This season the Tigers will be looking for the city title, and according to Coach Merkel, it could be a very close race for the city crown.

set sights on state title

Super soccer stars — "We are looking to our third city title and the league championship," said girls soccer coach Mr. Fred Williams. He feels that "the team should be terrific again." All but two starters from 1981 returned, giving experience to the squad although there were no seniors.

After winning the city title in 1980, the lady tigers of '81 had to go into overtime and a sudden death to overcome their main rival Harrison. With a 1-0 score they clinched their second city title.

This year, the lady tigers are also hoping for a chance to win their first Indiana State Championship.

Tracksters full Of Tracksters truck on — Memorial's track team is off and running with a strong turnout of twenty-five runners. Tom Ryder will be the best prospect for the long distance, while Scott Schulz, Steve Nussmeier and Jeff Bruner work in the short distance.

"One place where we're really hurting is in the sprints," says Coach Del Schiavone. "We lack quickness."

The Tigers hope to place high this year but are once again outnumbered by the city schools.

Lady tigers slam and Springing into action — The lady Tigers track and tennis teams began spring practices with many returnees from last year.

Heading the list of senior tennis returnees are Jeannine Brougham, Mary Longstaff and Abby Hayden. Only two seniors, Susan Keller and Amy Marshall, came back from last year's team. However, juniors Shelley Mehaffey and Melinda Berberich, two state participants, also returned.
